Applicants' election of Group I is acknowledged (claims 1-25, 35, 36). Also acknowledged are the elected species; the elected composition contains tiatropium (the anticholinergic), which, in the case of the bromide salt, is the following:

Applicants have argued that a search for the Group 2 invention would require little or no additional effort beyond that which is required for the Group 1 invention. However, applicants are not correct. In the case of the Group 1 invention, the examiner is required to provide reasons why a skilled drug formulation specialist might want to combine the two agents; a reference may be required to support the argument. By contrast, the Group 2 invention requires no such reasoning or reference. If a bottle containing an anticholinergic happens to be located in close proximity to a bottle containing a TACE inhibitor, the requirements of the Group 2 invention are met. Certainly, if the two bottles were located within 5 inches of one another, this would meet the requirements of claim 12. One could debate, however, whether two bottles that are located 10 feet from one another or 1000 feet from one another would meet the limitations of claim 12, but in any case, the group 2 invention encompasses substantially more subject matter than the Group 1 invention.

Applicants have also suggested that the examiner should state that the method-of-use claims are "subject to rejoinder". Applicants are correct, although the operative phrase here is "subject to". In the event that the composition claims are determined to be allowable prior to the final action, the method claims will simply be rejoined (subject to the same limitations on the composition). In the event that the composition claims are not determined to be allowable until after the final action, the situation becomes more complicated. In the event that the composition claims are not determined to be allowable until after the final action, and in the further event that the method claims would be subject to rejection under 35 USC 112 (first or second paragraph), then rejoinder would not be automatic. For example, claim 33 will not be rejoined in its present form, since the claim makes reference to a published PCT application. Claim 34 may or may not be rejoined in its present form. An inquiry would have to be conducted as to whether in fact all inflammatory and obstructive diseases of the respiratory tract are known to be effectively treated by the allowed compositions. If it were determined that all inflammatory and obstructive diseases of the respiratory tract are known to be effectively treated by the allowed compositions, then rejoining would take place.

A second election requirement is now set forth.

Applicants are required under 35 U.S.C. §121 to elect disclosed species (as follows) for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable.

- a ) a specific counterion of the tiatropium cation (e.g., bromide ion);
- b ) the contents of the elected composition (apart from the anticholinergic and the TACE inhibitor) including all carriers and excipients;
- c ) the "form" of the elected composition, e.g., a solution, a suspension, a powder, a tablet, or a capsule;
- d ) in the <sup>50 f</sup>event that the elected composition is in the form of a powder, election is required the diameter of one of the particles that is present. [Applicants should note that it is physically impossible for one particle to have more than one diameter; thus, election of a single diameter is required, rather than a range].

Applicant is advised that a response to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a generic claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentable distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. §103 of the other invention.
